FOREWORD

This is a record of the descendants of Berryman Brown of Roanoke County, Virginia, and Clinton, Dade and Ozark counties in Missouri. This is a genealogical record, not a history, however, I will include the bits of history that has been given to me.

Some of these records have been gleaned from old Virginia courthouse records, most of which have been gathered by Mr. Lloyd Brown of Washington, D. C., which he has so kindly made available to me. However, most of the enclosed material has been compiled by the author through personal contact with members of the family either directly or by letter writing. Miss Betty Momyer of Lathrop, Missouri, has been most helpful in giving to me the materials which she had assembled and recorded. Several other members of the family, both old and young, have given me real help, not only with their own immediate families but with other branches as well. My sincere gratitude and thanks to each and every one who has in any way added to the success of this undertaking.

In this record will be given a few items on the ancestry of Berryman Brown, never the less, that part of the record is subject to further research for final proof, but this record reflects the honest opinion of the researcher at the present time. Proof, or disproof, of his parentage will be welcomed by the compiler. No doubt much more information could be obtained on the early Brown family if someone had the time and inclination to search it out.

This book is only partially indexed. The index shows only the heads of families and opposite his name will appear the name of his wife. Unmarried children are not indexed, neither are married couples on which I have not sufficient information to warrant a separate entry, shown in the index. The married son is indexed under his own name while the married daughter is indexed under that of her husband.

To trace a family back, take the name of the man and if you want to know the name of his father, turn to the page indicated in the index for this particular man. Under his heading in the book you will find the name of his father. If you are tracing the wife, you will also find the name of her father given, if known. Next, turn to the index and find the name of his, or her, father and repeat the operation. This will eventually lead you back to the earliest one given in the book. To trace a lineage forward, follow the same procedure but do it in reverse. Trace from father to son and/or daughter.

The compiler deeply regrets that more information was not immediately forthcoming. The success of a family record depends largely upon the cooperation of all members of the family. If you find an error, correct your copy and tell others to make the same correction.

To the interested ones now living, and the multitudes yet unborn, may you find great joy in this record of your forefathers.

Mary Jane Persinger, dau of John Persinger, Jr. & Catherine Brown, b. 26 March 1828, Roanoke County, Va., d. 21 July 1864, Barnesville, Clinton County, Mo., buried at Barnesville near her aunt, Margaret Persinger (Martin) Bisby and Stephen Martin, husband of Margaret. Julian Persinger Martin, son of Stephen and Margaret Persinger Martin, first married a sister of Berryman Brown. She died without issue. Julian later remarried and the Brown family still called him Uncle Julian, thereby causing some of the descendants of Berryman Brown to think that Mary Jane Brown was a sister to Julian Martin. Mary Jane was a niece of Margaret Persinger Martin. Issue:

d. 1951, Sayre, Okla. md Ella _____.

According to his land purchases Berryman Brown came to Clinton County, Mo., perhaps in the fall of 1853, making his first land entry January 7, 1854. He was listed as a blacksmith in the Roanoke census records of 1850 but shown as a farmer in the Clinton County census' of 1860 and 1870. It appears he left Clinton County about 1870 and went to Arcola in Dade County, Mo., and is listed in 1880 census as a blacksmith. His son, Robert, states his father moved near Lutie, Ozark County, Mo., about 1885 and did some farming on a small scale depending mostly on raising cattle for his main source of income. He lived about two miles west of Lutie. The old house is still standing with the large stone fireplace which was built by Claude Brown, son of Berryman, about 1897. He was very fond of Fox hunting and also hunting for other game including wild turkey and had the usual old muzzle loading rifles and shot guns about the house including the horn in which he carried powder and shot. That part of the state was rather rugged, with plenty of deer and small game. In addition he also trapped o'possum, coon and skunk for the fur which was sold to local buyers who roamed over the county buying furs for shipment. He also moulded the bullets for the rifles. He lies buried in the village cemetery at Lutie, Ozark County, Mo. His grave is marked with a handsome stone of what appears to be a dark marble about 5 feet high. --Contributed by Lloyd Brown.

Cathern Margaret Shartzter, second wife of Berryman Brown, was born in Roanoke County Virginia on 23 Feb. 1852, the daughter of John and Susan Shartzter. She passed away 17 Jan. 1942 at her home in Sparta, Mo., age 89. Her early years were spent on a large plantation on the French Broad River, near Knoxville, Tenn. After the Civil War her family moved to Clinton County, Missouri, where she married Berryman Brown about the year 1869. (On Jan. 18, 1942, she had two surviving brothers, Andy Shartzter of Plattsburg, Mo., and Sam Shartzter of Miami Texas. --contributed.

Catherine Margaret Shartzter Brown, known as 'Aunt Kit', was a granny doctor and performed many services throughout her neighborhood. I do not have the date of her death.
